

It is my understanding that Sinclair Broadcasting intends to directly support the Bush campaign by airing the program "Stolen Honor" shortly before the November 2nd election.

If Sinclair is within its rights to do so, the rules should be changed. If Sinclair is outside the law, the law should be enforced.

The problem here, as I see it, is twofold: first, Sinclair will present a one-sided opinionated piece as fact; second, Sinclair will provide effectively free political advertising to only one candidate. The former is reprehensible; the latter is probably a violation of federal election laws.

Weakening rules regarding narrow ownership of wide-reaching media providers will weaken our nation as well. Please ask Sinclair to reconsider their intended action.
